Information:*

Kevin Mattran is not a traditional, stand behind the podium speaker. Having performed as a stand-up comedian since 1985, Kevin likes to be close to and interact with his audience.

Kevin's experience is rooted in education. He has been a high school teacher, college admissions representative and is currently an organizational trainer for Continuum EAP and an adjunct instructor in speech communication and theatre for Doane College in Nebraska. At Continuum he researches, creates and presents training workshops on topics like management, communication, professionalism and more.

Kevin is quite comfortable in front of an audience. His thirst for knowledge, sense of humor and passion are evident every time he speaks to a group of people. Between training, teaching, comedy and public speaking, Kevin is in front of more than 200 audiences per year.

A great source of inspiration for Kevin is his family. He and his wife have a son and twin daughters. They keep him active, young and supply him with an endless amount of material.

As a keynote speaker, after dinner speaker or emcee, Kevin has the versatility to adapt to any situation or any audience. While communication is certainly an area of expertise, he can speak on a variety of topics to suit most any group.

A dynamic speaker, Kevin Mattran will be a memorable part of any event.
